

Annual Report 2002

Superior Court of Pennsylvania

DEDICATION

The Superior Court dedicates this Annual Report for 2002 to three outstanding jurists who retired at the end of the year.

President Judge Emeritus William F. Cercone began his judicial service as a trial judge in 1956 and on this court in 1969. As president judge he was instrumental in expanding the court from seven to fifteen members, allowing the court to meet its ever increasing case load.

Judge John P. Hester began his judicial career as a trial judge in 1960 and on this court in 1978. His service as an administrative judge in the second largest trial court in Pennsylvania and his knowledge of local government, enabled him to bring a unique insight to the issues presented.

Judge John G. Brosky began his judicial career as a trial judge in 1956 and on this court in 1980. His continuing involvement in many public institutions and service as a Major General in the Pennsylvania Air National Guard served all Pennsylvanians well as he brought his experience to bear on the matters before him.

Together, they have over 130 years judicial experience, 79 of which were on this court. They have contributed much to the development of Pennsylvania law. They are our colleagues and friends and will be missed.

JOSEPH A. DEL SOLE
PRESIDENT JUDGE

(412) 565-2542

January 15, 2003

Dear Citizens of Pennsylvania:

It has been said many times that “justice delayed is justice denied.” As our Annual Report demonstrates, the judges and staff of the Superior Court of Pennsylvania are committed to well reasoned and timely decisions of the cases presented.

The median number of days from receipt of the trial court record and case disposition remains less than nine months. The Superior Court is among the most current appellate courts in the United States, even though it has one of the highest case loads per judge and experienced a 4% increase in the number of appeals filed last year.

Sincerely,

Joseph A. Del Sole
President Judge

2002 The Year in Review

In January, three new members, chosen by the people of Pennsylvania, were installed as judges of the court. Judge Richard B. Klein, District Justice John T. Bender and Attorney Mary Jane Bowes began their terms. Also, our colleague, Judge J. Michael Eakin, was installed as the newest Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

In June, the Governor appointed, and the Senate confirmed, Deputy Attorney General Robert A. Graci as a judge to fill the vacancy created by the departure of Justice Eakin.

Our annual conference was again held at Nemacolin Woodlands. The educational session covered a wide range of subjects. President Judge James Colins and South Carolina Court of Appeals Judge C. Tolbert Goolsby participated in a panel session chaired by PJE McEwen on Recusal Guidelines for Appellate Judges. Professor Robert Harper presented a session on Pennsylvania Evidence Highlights. Professor Ken Gormley reviewed State and Federal constitutional decisions. Professor Laura Little discussed improving the writing of judicial opinions. Andrew Masich, President of the Heinz Pittsburgh Regional History Center, presented a program on the Plains Indians and their connection to the region.

The court continues its efforts to distribute decisions electronically to trial judges and counsel. In cooperation with the Disciplinary Board, the data base of attorneys' E-mail addresses is being enhanced. Also, we are developing programs that will provide for the electronic filing of docketing statements.

The relocation of our Harrisburg Prothonotary's Office to 100 Pine Street and the Pittsburgh Administrative Offices to the Sixth Floor of the Grant Building were accomplished. These new locations provide safer and more efficient working environments for our employees.

The court continued to “ride the circuit,” holding sessions in Scranton and Erie. There were four en banc sessions and 29 cases were presented for consideration. Pennsylvania Cable Network continues to broadcast the en banc sessions and distinguished attorneys presented a pre-argument discussion of the issues to be reviewed.

On December 31, 2002, PJE Cercone, Judge Hester and Judge Brosky ended their judicial service. Also, PJE McEwen was commissioned a Senior Judge.

History of the Superior Court

In 1895, the Pennsylvania General Assembly established the Superior Court to hear appeals from decisions of the Courts of Common Pleas of the Commonwealth. From time to time, the legislature has expanded the Court's jurisdiction, and today it decides appeals touching almost every aspect of life and commerce in the state, including family matters, such as child custody, visitation, adoption, divorce, and support; criminal cases; issues concerning wills and estates; property disputes; and cases involving damages for breach of contract or personal injury. The judges of the Court are also responsible for hearing applications made by the Attorney General and district attorneys under the Wiretapping and Electronic Surveillance Control Act.

The Superior Court is often the final arbiter of legal disputes in Pennsylvania. Although the Supreme Court may grant a petition for an appeal from a decision of the Superior Court, in the large majority of cases, such petitions are denied. Appeals allowed to the United States Supreme Court are even more infrequent.

The Superior Court was originally composed of seven judges who gathered at the three forums of the Court in Harrisburg, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh to hear every case. The Supreme Court, in 1978, citing the "exceedingly heavy volume of appeals coming to the Superior Court," exercised its constitutional supervisory powers over Pennsylvania courts to order the Superior Court to begin sitting in panels of three judges composed of a Supreme Court justice, a Superior Court judge, and a Common Pleas judge. By rule, the Supreme Court provided that each panel would constitute a quorum and speak for the entire Superior Court.

In 1979, the voters approved an amendment to the Pennsylvania Constitution providing that the Superior Court be enlarged permanently. Pursuant to this constitutional change, the General Assembly in 1980 provided for the gubernatorial appointment of eight additional judges. By the start of 1986, all fifteen Superior Court seats had been filled by election.

Under statute, judges gain seniority by length of continuous service on the Court, and judges elected or appointed together determine seniority by lot. The president judge is chosen by election of the Court to serve a five-year term. Except for cases in which the Court specially orders consideration by an en banc panel of nine judges, the Court continues to sit in three-judge panels, assisted by senior judges specially appointed by the Supreme Court.

The Reporter's office uses computer-housed records to prepare statistical information for the Court. The Reporter also monitors late votes, file letters, en banc cases and cases 60 days or older.

The Reporter is the liaison with Thomson West, the official publisher of the Court's opinions. The Reporter provides Thomson West with filed opinions, a memorandum decisions table, whose text is not published, and a table identifying those cases in which a petition for reargument is pending. Correction letters are sent to Thomson West before final publication in the event an error is discovered or at the request of a judge. The Reporter forwards to Thomson West transcripts of special ceremonial sessions of the Court for publication.

The Reporter adds the universal citation to the opinions before they are sent for filing. These filed opinions are electronically transmitted daily to the Superior Court Home Page, Lexis, West Law, the Administrative Office of the Pennsylvania Courts' Home Page and The Legal Intelligencer. Revisions, withdrawal of opinions and rearguments pending on opinions are updated and sent to the publishing/research companies when the mentioned situations occur.

In addition to providing information from the Court to the legal publishing/research companies, the Reporter also provides the Court with information from the publishers identifying the citations where the Court's recently published decisions can be found.
